Jana Stanfield delivers harmony, hope, and humor!

Jana Stanfield is a nationally recognized inspirational humorist and multi-platinum singer-songwriter whose signature presentations deliver humor, insight, and positive messages, beautifully woven into concert form. Often referred to as “The Queen of Heavy Mental,” Jana describes her music as “psychotherapy you can dance to.” Jana’s compositions have been heard on Oprah, 20/20, Entertainment Tonight, and on film and radio stations coast to coast sung by Reba McEntire, Andy Williams, and others. She shares the stage with stars ranging from Kenny Loggins and Lily Tomlin to the Dixie Chicks and receives standing ovations on world-famous stages from Nashville’s Grand Ole Opry to New York’s Carnegie Hall. In 2005, Jana was awarded two New Thought Music Awards, including Best Inspirational Song and Best Personal Transformation Song for I’m Not Lost, I’m Exploring.

Rev. Marciah McCartney

AKA Rev. Marciahmello

Originator and co-coordinator of the Unity Day of Planetary Play

Through her work in the Expressive Arts, Marciah has developed techniques and practices that facilitate the creative process. In her dynamic classes, play shops, retreats, and planetary purpose coaching, thousands of lives have been transformed through laughter and play. Marciah is 100% committed to awakening “Planetary Play Consciousness,” to transform lives through the realization that we are all divine playmates here to play with each other in our divine oneness. As a Unity minister, she has devoted her time, talents, and treasure to furthering the idea set forth by Charles Fillmore, “When there is more joy put back in religion, there will be more religion (spirituality) in the world.”
